Pittsburgh Gazette.

TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 4, 1819.

It is a subject of great gratification to us, that in so short a period after the promulgation in Europe of the impertinent hypothesis with regard to intellect in America, their ablest writers themselves, probably without intending it, have by their own conduct afforded the most unequivocal refutation of it. American state policy begins to occupy an important portion of consideration, beyond the Atlantic; in England, a late work most able in its direction and most devoted to its own administration, seems to take a pride in bringing up Russia, as a rival to us; now Russia indisputably stands forth as the greatest power at this day in Europe, and whether it was intended or not, the position is not a little flattering that places the safety of Europe from our encroachments, upon the strength alone of their most powerful nation. The letter of Mr. Adams is published in all the important Journals of Europe, and as far as regards the taste and style of its composition, it stands unrivalled at this period, and nothing equal to it has emanated from the British government since the days of the meridian celebrity of Pitt. It has been criticized for its spirit, in one place, censured for its sentiments, in another, & abused for its subtlety in a third, but notwithstanding this it has been published and republished until it has become one of the best known papers in Europe. The message of Governor Clinton to the legislature of New-York last session has been received with still greater honours; it is indeed a document on which national pride may repose in full confidence; criticism will not assail it because its features of policy can offend the creed of no sect; criticism cannot assail it because it is one of the master pieces of an accomplished scholar, whose mind is as expansive as his intellects are acute. The report of the Canal Commissioners drawn up by him, may be considered as another stock piece for the advocates of American genius. Mr. Calhoun's report is a third document which has appeared within a short time to rebut the charge against American talent; we have never read any thing, with the exception of Judge Marshall's productions, so interesting and so convincing, where ornament and figure have been so studiously avoided. It is a production the very reverse in style, of the eloquent letter of Mr. Adams, but it is in no respect inferior to it in effect. Mr. Madison's speech before the agricultural society of Albemarle is probably one of the ablest compositions that has ever appeared on [illegible] certainly a matter somewhat astonishing that a man who it might have been presumed, had devoted the whole of his attention to politics during his life, should be able to produce a work, which evinces not only a considerable knowledge of chemistry, but what is more surprizing, which exhibits an intimate acquaintance with the practical application of the discoveries in this important science, to the purposes of agriculture. Nothing more useful, or interesting has flowed from the pen of any author in Europe, and it has been treated there with the greatest respect. Pitkin's statistics have been honoured wherever they have appeared; the first professors in Europe are engaged in translating them, and some complimentary letters have been sent to the author, highly flattering. Other American works have appeared formerly, but they were "so few and far between" that they have been ranked among the monsters of the new world, rather than as affording evidence of intellect and genius. Trumbull's M'Fingal, Barlow's Columbiad, Hamilton's "Federalist," Ramsay's American Revolution, Marshall's Life of Washington, and Wirt's "British Spy" are among the number of these rare productions; they have all appeared at considerable intervals, during a period of thirty years. The productions however which we have before enumerated, all bursting upon the European world about the same moment, will add by concentration such immense weight to the arguments of those who support the side of American reputation, as must bear down all opposition, and give us a character for mental capacity, equal to that which recent occurrences have created for us in a military point of view.

Judging from the parliamentary reports contained in the English papers which reach us, the talents for debate exhibited on the floor of congress, and in some of our legislatures, may bear a comparison before any tribunal on earth.—They boast of their Pitt, Fox, Sheridan and Barre; posterity will place in niches equally honourable, our King, Morris, Bayard and Ross, not to mention our less profound characters, but of equal wit, Harper, Randolph, and a croud of others of both parties. The late Seminole question has been productive of much astonishing eloquence, and nothing has appeared in the British parliament for many years equal to the speeches of Clay, Baldwin and Hopkinson. We read with much satisfaction in the late debates in parliament on the question of repealing the laws against usury, a reference to the speech of Mr. Hay of Richmond on the same subject, as containing reasoning not to be refuted. Mr. Hay is not considered as one of the brightest luminaries of Virginia, but this speech of his has not been excelled for sound argument, by any cotemporaneous production. It has had a powerful effect in his state, and has produced a multitude of proselytes.

These facts induce us to believe that the contemptible theories and statements of European philosophers and travellers will e'er long meet the fate they deserve. When Jefferey and Moore not to mention poor Cobbet, have sung their palinode, it will not be long before the whole tribe will follow. It is however of no consequence to America; she has fought herself into fame, and there can be little doubt but that her Augustan age will commence at a period of existence long after which, other nations continued immersed in barbarism.

THUNDER STORM.

NEW-YORK, April 18.

After the prevalence of a fresh south-easterly wind from Friday evening to Saturday noon, with occasional showers, about half past one o'clock the horizon was remarkably darkened by thick clouds; it became necessary to light candles in our houses and every thing appeared like after-twilight. In about an hour, the most vivid flash of lightning almost ever witnessed was instantly followed by a tremendous and frightful crash of thunder, and the rain commenced to fall in torrents. The tempest continued for about an hour and a quarter, when the wind shifted to north-east, and the storm abated. During this time the lightning was almost incessant, with heavy thunder. To add to the terrors of the scene, the cry of fire was sounded through the streets, and it was found that the schooner Thames, lying at Coffee House slip, nearly loaded with a valuable cargo for Richmond, was on fire. The lightning struck her foremast, which it shivered, throwing the splinters to a considerable distance, descended to the forecastle and hold, passed through the side, and spent itself in the water. Four men who were in the forecastle were wounded, two of them severely, but we understand not dangerously. The cargo was considerably injured by the fire, and by the water from the engines and though the flames were soon extinguished, some of the boxes were burnt to a coal. At the same time a dwelling house in Elm street, in the rear of 324, Broadway was struck, & the roof considerably injured. The rope walk at Brooklyn, owned by Mr. Barbarine, was also struck—the head house and about thirty feet of the walk, with a quantity of hemp and yarns, and the principal part of the machinery of the establishment, was destroyed. The rope walk much injured by pulling down to save it from the flames. We understand the property was insured.

The house of Samuel Swartwout, Esq. at Hoboken, was also struck with lightning, and one of the chimneys and part of the roof partially destroyed. The shock was great, but no persons injured. Mr. S. who at the time was on the causeway, was struck on the shoulder, & other persons in the neighbourhood experienced the effect of the lightning.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

We are indebted to a re-pectable friend for the loan of several numbers of The Dumfries and Galloway Journal, one of the best conducted papers published in Scotland, from which we have selected the following Miscellaneous Articles:—

SUICIDE COMMITTED BY A BRUTE ANIMAL.

To the Editor of the Dumfries and Galloway Journal.

SIR—A few days ago, when taking a ride, before dinner, round the lawn, in front of the house of Friars Carse, in company with another gentleman, we perceived asheep on the opposite side of the river Nith, belonging to the flock of a respectable farmer on the estate of Dalswinton, separate from the rest of his companions, and in seeming perfect health, boldly advance towards the banks of the river. It then dashed into the water, and having proceeded nearly to its depth, without swimming, it immediately put its head under water, and leaving its back only visible while in the act of drowning. While writhing in the agonies of death which were visible to each of us from the convulsive motions in its back, which remained during the whole period above water) we expected every moment to see it raise its head, but no!—bent on self destruction, it kept its head firmly under water, until the convulsive throbs became less apparent, and until life was totally extinguished. Now, sir, I should be happy to know what name any person would affix to the act of this animal. Many, I know, will be ready enough to inform me that there are some diseases peculiar to sheep which induce them mechanically to run into water. On this observation I shall only remark, that from the most accurate information received from the proprietor of the sheep in question, he had been among his flock only about an hour before the accident happened, and that all of them appeared in the most perfect health. What disease, pray, is it, which induces too many human beings of of both sexes to dash into this serpentine river, as well as other rivers, and there remain until the vital spark is extinguished? It has unfortunately fallen to my lot to see a scene of this kind, but I will venture to say, that no person ever saw suicide more deliberately or more determinedly committed by any human being than it was by this brute animal.—I am Sir, your most obedient servant,

An Observer of Actions.

Cabbage versus Wine.—A French Journal observes, that the cabbage is a sovereign remedy for curing intoxication from wine, that it has even the power of preventing it; for we are informed, that by eating a certain quantity of cabbage before dinner, we may drink as much wine as we please, without experiencing any inconvenience. This property of the cabbage is mentioned by Aristotle and Theophrastus, who are of opinion that it proceeds from the antipathy which the vine shows for a cabbage. If a cabbage be planted near a vine, the latter retires a great distance, or dies. Hence it is concluded, that the vine, owing to this aversion, allows itself to be overcome by the cabbage. Be this as it may, the phenomenon is indisputable, and the receipe, which was declared to be effectual by the ancient Egyptians, is now universally adopted in Germany.

We learn with pleasure from a respectable gentleman in Manchester, that wherever gas has been introduced into manufactories, no case of epidemic has yet appeared; and that in one particular instance a boy employed in a cotton mill, exposed to the dust of a confined room, became very asthmatical, and being removed from his situation, and appointed to light the gas burners in the mill, he was restored to perfect health.

A mittimus was last week signed to commit to Southwell prison, John Gobbitas, late of Laxton, huckster, for stealing fowls. The delinquent having one hand cuffed, with the apendage of a leg chain, was delivered to a deputy constable for safe conveyance to the above mentioned place; however, John, with great adroitness, contrived to mingle with his discourse, such a proportion of gin, &c. so as to overtop the bright faculties of his keeper. Arived at Southwell, by well-feigned pretences persuaded him to alight at a public house, when, under the pretext of warming themselves he made poor Mr. Deputy so miserable drunk, that he picked his pockets of the key of his manacles, set himself at liberty, and absolutely trammelled his sleeping guar[illegible]

BRUSSELS, January 27.

The number of persons banished from France, is very much diminished. Six of them have died in foreign countries, and many others, including three generals, have obtained leave to return home. It is now said that on the coronation of his majesty several others will be recalled. There is no want of exertion in behalf of Marshals Soult and Grouchy, and General Lallemand. Many persons take particular interestin gen. Carnot, who is now in Prussia, where he seems to enjoy great esteem. Those who have the least chance of ever being permitted to return are said to be Savary, ex-minister of the police, and gen. Hullin, who was president of the court martial which condemned to death the unfortunate Duke d'Engheim.

SOUTH SEA ISLANDS.

Extract from the Journal of the Missionaries at Eimeo, &c.

July 28, 1817.—Held our usual meeting this evening. A great number of the natives were present. Various questions were proposed and answered, particularly on the duty of performing works of necessity on the Sabbath day. Two late occurrences gave rise to these enquiries: one of them was the illness of Pomare Vahine. It was enquired whether in the case of extreme illness it would be lawful to send for relations or friends from a distance, or to despatch a canoe for that purpose to another island. The other circumstance was as follows: A man of Taiarabu had a canoe on the beach. The tide flowing higher than usual one Sabbath day, the canoe went adrift. A native who observed it, ran & told the owner of the canoe, who replied that it was the Sabbath day, and he therefore thought it would be sinful for him to secure the canoe. The consequence was, that the canoe was lost. Brother Davies took this opportunity of explaning to the natives present, the difference between works of ordinary labor and those of necessity and mercy; and told them, with respect to the man in Taiarabu, that although his motive was good, he was mistaken as to the point of duty, and that he ought to have secured his canoe.

Aug. 4.—The place of worship being too small for the congregation, has lately been enlarged. It is now 64 feet by 22, yet it was filled to-day, and several stood outside. There must have been at least 600 persons present, whose attention was very encouraging. Brotner Davies had some interesting conversation with Timo, who was formerly a famous prophet, and an enemy to the Missionaries and to their religion. Tmo spoke freely; confessed what a wicked man he had formerly been; and acknowledged the goodness of God in sparing him and giving him to know his word.

12.—This morning a Paumotuan, a native of the island of Anna, called Teufati, came to Brother Davies to ask his advice. He said that he had heard by means of men on board captain Walker's vessel, that Moorea, mentioned in our Journal of April 23, and those who went with him had been diligently employed in teaching their idolotrous countrymen what [illegible] knowledge of the true God, and with such success that the whole of the island of Ann had renounced heathenism, except one district, of which Moorea was a native. Teufati expressed a strong desire to go and teach his countrymen. This man has attended Brother Davies a long while as a scholar, can read & spell, knows his catechism, and has conducted himself with propriety ever since he has made a profession of Christianity.

Sept. 8.—After dismissing the school this afternoon, Brother Davies attended the funeral of a man from Faa, in Otaheite, who had been brought over here to receive medical advice. A considerable number of people attended, whom Brother Davies addressed at the grave, and concluded as usual with prayer. The natives universally expect religious services on occasion of the interment of those among them who have professed Christianity. When funerals occur at a distance from the Missionary stations, one the natives usually prays at the grave. These occasions present excellent opportunites for impressing upon their minds many solemn truths; and it seems to be well understood among them every where, that these services are intended for the living and not for the dead.

Extract of a letter from Mr. Ellis to Mr. J. B. Moore, dated Eimeo, Dec. 4, 1817.

Things are going on well here. We have printed 7,000 copies of different kinds of school books; have finished the first sheet of Luke, (24 pages) of which we intend to take off 3,000 copies. Several hundreds of the natives have learned to read since the spelling-books have been printed. Some thousands are waiting for the publication of St. Luke's Gospel. Canoes are frequently arriving from various parts, with persons whose business it is to enquire when the books will be ready; and an increasing desire to become acquainted with the word of God, powerfully pervades the minds of the people.

I work seven or eight hours most days, at printing; it is warm work here: but thanks be to God, who has condescended to engage me in so useful an employment, as that of assisting to prepare the word of God for a people so anxious to receive it.

PITTSBURGH.

Tuesday, May 4, 1819.

Private accounts from the seaboard represent things in a gloomy state. The merchants, probably in part owing to the inability of the western storekeepers to make remittances, and in part to the low price of American produce in the European markets, are reduced to the greatest distress. Extensive and serious bankruptcies must be the inevitable consequence. The banks themselves are said to be equally embarrassed, and are only waiting for some respectable institution to set the example of a stoppage of specie payments, to make the system general. In the interval, however, they are curtailing their discounts most alarmingly. This dismal state of things is producing singular revolutions in some of our cities. The inhabitants are turning their eyes to the west, as the only place of relief and asylum. A multitude of citizens of the first respectability, and not long since of considerable wealth, are collecting the remains of their shattered estates to invest them in the new states and territories that are spreading beyond the Mississippi. Fortunes of from ten to forty thousand dollars, which would not enable them to retrieve their possessions on the seaboard, will insure comfort and ultimate affluence, if properly invested, either in Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, or Missouri. A gentleman of intelligence informs us, that a most singular and sudden change has taken place in the minds of the inhabitants of our cities with respect to the western country. The name but lately was associated with every thing disagreeable and uncomfortable: it was used in nurseries for the purpose of frightening children. It is now viewed, not exactly as the assylum of oppressed humanity, as, thank heaven, America is free from oppression, but as the refuge from distress, and the legitimate seat of independence.

These sufferings will, more than probable, produce beneficial effects on our country. Mercantile pursuits had become too extensive and monopolizing for the substantial benefits of the nation.—Commerce is only useful when it operates as a stimulus on the productive labour of a country; when support for it is sought from other sources, it becomes diseased, and ends by communicating the infection to the citizens at large. Precisely such has been the case with the United States for the last five or six years. More foreign products have been imported than can be paid for; the East-India trade, which operates in no possible shape favorably for the country, has been overdone; importers have naturally become embarrassed; in devising means for relieving themselves they have, amongst other expedients, resorted to the scheme of holding out temptations to the people. These have not been withstood with sufficient fortitude, and the distress has consequently become most general. A few years will be sufficient to correct the evil; the correction may be expedited or protracted as our national legislature is wise or improvident, and as manufactures are hastened or delayed. The doctrine that inculcates the propriety of letting commerce and manufactures find their own level, and of depending on themselves, is nonsense; manufactures never succeeded in any country without artificial aid; their history in England proves this, and even now they are tenderly fostered by law, and every possible protection is given to them. It is time that the same system was adopted here. Late occurrences in the European market induce us to believe that our plans will not be so strenously opposed in the southern section of our country. The price of their produce must continue to fall, and it will soon be their interest to encourage a consumption of the raw material at home. These circumstances induce us to anticipate better days, and we shall be amply compensated for our present embarrassments, if they have the effect of exhibiting to the world the advantages of the west, and of giving us our merited station in the American scale.

We have received the first numbers of the "Morning Chronicle," published in Baltimore, by Paul Allen, Esq. late Editor of the Federal Republican, and more recently, of the Journal of the Times.—Mr. Allen's fame is too well known in the walks of American literature, to render it necessary for a brother Editor to give an opinion as to the ability of a paper conducted under his direction. From the orthodoxy of his creed, however, both in religion and politics, we consider we are but performing a duty to our friends, by informing them that we know of no Editor whose Journal would be more deserving of being preserved on file. Indeed we view with regret, the inattention paid to this practice in our country; we have several papers published in our cities, whose contents would afford in a few years from this period, the most pleasing retrospective amusement. Among others we will mention the 'Union' of Philadelphia, published by Mr. Bronson, which always contains matter both interesting and new, and very often displays strong features of wit and literature. We should like also to see more attention paid to the 'Washington City Gazette;' it is published at Head-Quarters, and to say the least of it, it is every way equal to the 'National Intelligencer.' The 'National Register,' published at Washington City, has lately assumed a most respectable attitude; the original articles are written with considerable taste and much independence, and the public documents are judiciously arranged. It is an excellent body of state papers, and well worthy of being bound. The 'Philadelphia Recorder,' lately commenced, also bids fair to possess the same kind of utility; it is published of the proper octavo size for binding, and we hope it will omit none of our own state documents.

The monotony of our scene has been broken by the arrival of Mr. West with his beautiful and accomplished horses.—The circus has been opened for a few days with considerable eclat, and we believe with some profit for the company. We have understood that the manager is rather fastidious as to the article of money at the box-office door; he is so particular as to demand par paper or silver! As father Foigard says, 'the man is quite unreasonable!' If he succeeds in his demands through the west generally, we shall look upon him as a performer of miracles, for according to our present lights on the subject, we conceive the attempt to procure what is called par paper, about as practicable as Doctor Wagtail's plan to extract oil from tinder.—However, as it is the age of experiment, let them go on and prosper.

The arrival of a corps of Equestrians among us, brings to our minds the subject most dear to us; the advancement and growth of our western section of the continent. Thirty-five years ago, a gentleman* of high standing in our country, predicted in a large company in Philadelphia, that he should live to see the day when a mail would cross the mountains once in two weeks! he was viewed as a wild enthusiast. A revolution of affairs made this accomplished citizen a resident on an estate he held 17 miles west of Pittsburgh, and before he left this world, he had the proud satisfaction (for he was an enthusiast in every thing relating to the west) of receiving his papers from New-York and Philadelphia, and of seeing a rapid mail stage from the east, pass his door three times a week! He was still more gratified, for he lived to hear of the manufactures of Pittsburgh being wafted to the shores of Europe, in ships built at the spot where his early patriotism had been devoted to protecting the frontiers, and conciliating the friendship of an Indian population.

* The late Col. George Morgan, of Morganza, who in early life filled a number of the most important stations under the old Congress of the United States.

MONTREAL, April 10.

Quebec Bank.—It appears that the bill to incorporate this institution has passed the House of Commons. One would certainly infer, that, an act of the legislature was calculated to give great additional stability to such an establishment. A Gentleman from Quebec informs us that the country people in the environs of that city, are now becoming generally favourable to receiving the bank notes, which will undoubtedly operate very favorably on their circulation. In the mean time we are continually hearing of a nest of scoundrels who are employed, it is said, in manufacturing imitations of notes of banks in the U. States. They reside deep within the woods in the neighbourhood of St. Armand, and in other places And their deleterious transactions are carried on with a degree of cunning only equalled by their villainy. It will not be long before they begin in all probability to fabricate the notes of the Canada Banks. And we shall then have to rue the supiness which has tacitly allowed these vipers to carry on their nefarious doings for want of some active exertions to bring them to justice. A very censurable neglect, and extremely unjust, tho' we had continued to have had nothing to fear for ourselves from them. It is supposed that our laws are not sufficiently explicit on this offence to authorize the punishment of these fellows. Hence one or two of them who have been brought up to Montreal on charges connected with this practice, have been able to effect their escape either with a trivial punishment, or with perfect impunity.

From the Montreal Courant, April 10.

ATROCIOUS MURDER.

A Gentleman of undoubted veracity, recently arrived in this city from Kingston Upper Canada, has brought the account of a murder, marked by circumstances of peculiar atrocity, said to have been inserted in an Ogdensburgh paper, and of which the particulars are as follows

A young merchant (whose name and nation had escaped the memory of our informant,) who had been travelling in the country for the purpose of purchasing flor, and had in his possession a considerable sum of money, put up for the night at an Inn.

Sometime after an aged mendicant entered and besought the landlord to grant him lodging. The landlord at first refused, but the Merchant offering to defray the expenses of the old man's supper and bed, acquiesced.—Bed time being come, the two travellers were conducted to chambers separated only by a thin partition and soon fell asleep. In the middle of the night the old man was awakened by a noise proceeding from the adjoining room, and apparently occasioned by difficulty in breathing and struggling. He rose softly and creeping cautiously to a crack in the partition from which a stream of light issued, beheld with horrour the landlord cutting the young man's throat, and his wife deliberately receiving the blood in a kettle. Trembling for his own life, he returned to bed, placed himself in the careless and relaxed attitude of sleep, and summoning all his fortitude to maintain command of countenance awaited the visit which he had no doubt would be made him. He was not deceived—they entered his room, bending over his bed, carefully examined his features—but the wife whispering in a low tone, "He is certainly asleep.—He has not heard it,"—they withdrew. The next morning, the old man with an air of studied ignorance of the preceding night's transaction, inquired of the landlord, whether the merchant had, according to promise, paid for his bed and supper, and expressing a wish to return him thanks for his liberality, asked whether he had yet arisen. The landlord replied that he had sometime before departed, & had satisfied him for every thing. The old man instantly repaired to a Magistrate,—disclosed what he had witnessed—accompanied by the police returned to the Inn—seized the murderer and his accomplice and proceeded to examine the chamber of the deceased. It was locked, but the landlord refusing the key, the door was burst open and the unhappy victim found with his throat cut from ear to ear. The offenders were immediately committed to prison to await that punishment which so diabolical a violation of law human and divine, and such a preternatural absence of natural feeling so imperiously demanded.

TRENTON, N. J. April 19.

Shad Fishing has commenced in the Delaware this season under very favorable auspices. During last week they were caught so abundantly, that they were sold at fifteen dollars a hundred. They are, generally, of a good size, and sometimes unusually large. One was caught near this city, on Thursday morning, which weighed fourteen pounds and a quarter, and measured two feet eight inches in length. It was sold at the fishery for seventy-five cents.

Revolutionary Document.—A friend has handed us the following extract from the orderly book of General Sullivan, in command here during the revolution, as being connected with a case somewhat analogous to one which occurred in the Seminole War. We have omitted names for obvious reasons.—Prov. Pat.

"Head Quartes, Providence,
July 24, 1778.

"The sentence of the Court Martial, whereof colonel E—— was President, against M. A. and D. C. the general totally disapproves, as illegal and absurd. The clearest evidence having appeared to the court, that the said A. was employed by the enemy repeatedly, to come on the main as a spy, and that he enticed men to go on to Rhode Island, to enlist in the enemy's service, and his confessions from day to day being so different as to prove him not only a spy, but to be a person in whom the least confidence cannot be placed; the court having found him guilty of all this; nothing could be more absurd than to sentence him to be whipped one hundred lashes, and afterwards to be taken into a service which he has long been endeavouring in the most malicious and secret manner to injure! The man who is found guilty of acting as a spy, can have but one judgment by all the laws of war, which is to suffer death; and the sentence of a man to be whipped when found guilty of this crime, is as absurd as for the common law courts to order a man to be set in the stocks for wilful murder. The same absurdity appearing in judgment against D. C. for the same reasons, [the general] disapproves them both, dissolves the court, and orders another court to sit for trial of those persons, to-morrow morning, at 9 o'clock: The adjutant general to lodge a crime against A. for acting as a spy, and for enticing men to enlist into the enemy's service; and against C. for acting as a spy."

At the subsequent court, A. was found guilty as before, and sentenced to be hung, which sentence the general approved and executed.

CHARLESTON, April 14.

FROM HAVANA.

At a late hour we received from our correspondent at Havana, a letter, and papers to the 5th inst. inclusive, and a complete prices current of the 1st, by the brig Legal Tender—prime coffee was extremely scarce at Havana; price 24½: rice $6½, great and sudden fall. We are sorry to state that a duel took place at Havana on the 2d instant, between Mr. Cannon and Mr. Pierson midshipmen of the United States corvette John Adams, in which Mr. C. was killed on the spot.—Times.

[From a Poughkepsie, N. Y. paper.]

The following account of an extraordinary day's work, performed by Mr. Jesse, Smith, a resident of a neighboring town, we have from a gentleman of respectability who was witness of the fact, with a request that we would give it an insertion. The public may therefore rely upon the correctness of the statement.

Worthy of Notice.—Mr. Jesse Smith, a very respectable farmer in the neighborhood of this place, came 4 miles from home on foot in the morning, breakfasted with judge Russel, at his usual hour, mowed for him (in a workman-like manner,) 4½ acres of pretty stout grass, a part of which was beaten down and lodged. After which he went a mile into the woods, felled and cut 4 sticks of timber, 20 feet long, for the sleepers of a house; returned to the judge's, scored and hewed the same timber fit for the builder's use—and walked from thence home, all within the same day, and in good season, about sunset.

Mr. Smith has, more than once, cradled ten acres of heavy rye in a day, between sun-rise and sun-set.

He has also tended alone, the burning of a lime kiln, five nights and six days, without sleeping a moment, and without any material injury to his health.

Valuable Property.

THE subscriber intending to go to Europe, is disposed to sell his undivided half of the

the other half of which is owned by James Berthoud and Son, of Shippingsport, Kentucky—The Mill is situated on the bank of the Ohio river, in the town of Hendersonville, Ken.—has two pair of French Burrs and one pair of Laurel Hill stones, and runs two Saws, has been in operation for two years—the Engine is on the condensing principle, and with the improvements that are now making to it, it will be one of the best in the Union—a wharf of one hundred and twenty feet in length has just been completed, which adds much to the convenience and solidity of the mill. Those who may be disposed to purchase are requested to examine the property, the local advantages of which (its situation being in a very flourishing and rich country, and commanding an uninterrupted navigation for its produce at all seasons of the year) are evident to all.

ALSO

Several Lots are offered for sale situate in the very best part of the town.

Pittsburgh, May 4.

100 Lots in the town of Murrysville,

WILL be offered for sale by public vendue, on Monday the 31st of May next, situate on the Pittsburgh and New Alexandria Turnpike Road, 17 miles east of Pittsburgh, 14 west from New-Alexandria, and 12 from Greensburgh. The site is handsome, being situate in the forks of Turtle Creek, in the centre of a thriving, fine settlement. A number of the Lots will have one or other of the streams running in their rear.—There are at present a Grist mill and Saw mill, and the proprietors have in great forwardness, a Fulling mill, an Oil mill, and a Carding machine, all within less than 100 yards of the town. There are four other excellent seats for water works belonging to the proprietors, none of which exceed 100 rods from the town, well calculated for a paper mill, a scythe and sickle mill, a saw mill, tilt-hammer, &c. It is the sincere wish of the proprietors not only to benefit themselves by the institution, but also to be serviceable to all honest, sober, industrious mechanics or artizans, who may be inclined to settle in said town: they are therefore determined to give every encouragement in their power to all such persons as will go on to build shortly on their respective Lots. The Lots will be 60 feet front, and 120 feet back; to every In-Lot, may be furnished with an Out-Lot of reasonable extent, and on moderate terms—a Clay for brick—stone—timber, and every other material necessary for building, is convenient and plenty. There is a remarkably nice seat for a tan-yard, including a never failing spring, in the town. In fine, it is generally considered the most beautiful and convenient seat for a village in the western country. The terms will be more fully made known by the proprietors, on the day of sale. The proprietors will make a good and legal title to purchasers.

40 Dollars Reward.

BROKE out of the prison of this county, by the aid of fire, on the night of Friday the 23d inst. a convict, whose real name, I believe is but who was tried and convicted under the fictitious name of JOSEPH DONELLY.

JOSEPH THOMPSON,

He is an Irishman, about 20 or 21 years of age, 5 feet 9 or 10 inches high, of a very fair complexion, and has a narrow escher running obliquely across the upper part of his nose. His clothing was, when he went away, a dark green coat, almost worn out, an old castor hat, a pair of coarse shoes, a new pair of chambry cotton pantaloons, and vest of the same. The above runaway is a small, good looking, stout made fellow, but a noted scoundrel, and would make use of the most dangerous means to escape the punishment of guilt.

The above reward will be paid for securing the above convict in any jail, and giving me information thereof.

WM & JOHN HILL

Pittsburgh, July 15 2awt

PATENT GAS FIRE,

FOR STEAM BOAT.

A CONCENTRATED FUEL for Steam-Boats has been invented, consisting of Tar or other carbonaceous substance, commingled with Steam,

The apparatus is simple; the management easy and safe. It is a great auxiliary to a wood or coal fire, which it both enlivens, encreases and saves—for it seems to combine so rapidly with the oxygen of the air, as to prevent the wood from wasting or consuming so fast as usual, the blaze, notwithstanding, being very active and intense.

The apparatus consists of a double vessel of copper or iron, cylindrical, lying on its side, upon or rather between the boilers, if there are 2.

Tar, Turpentine, Rosin, Spirits, Oil, or other combustible fluid, being put into the inner one, steam is allowed to flow from the boiler through a pipe and cock into the space between and thro' a few holes on the upper side of the inner one to press on the surface of the tar, which being heated by the surrounding steam, is at pleasure driven out through a small pipe (having a stop cock) meeting and uniting with another pipe leading out steam from the spaee between—the continuation of the pipe then leads to the fire or flue. The longer this pipe (if kept hot) the better. It need not be more than a quarter of an inch in dameter.

In its way the tar is extremely attenuated and mingling with the steam. Some chemists are of opinion that by the attraction of its carbon, it decomposes the steam into the constituents of water, oxygen and hydrogen, and combines with them to form the highly inflamable Gasses, carbonic-acid and carburetted hydrogen, or if not thus formed in the pipe, they are produced at or near its orifice, which need not be more than the tenth of an inch diameter for a boiler of consi lerable size.

The only art in management, is to graduate the flow of the tar and steam to such proportion as that neither shall appear to predominate, and in taking care that the fluid be previously strained so as not to obstruct the pipe by any extraneous particles. This will easily be done by placing a seive over the reservoir, from which a pipe (having a stop cock) leads into one end of the tar vessel. There is of course a safety valve and a stop cock to draw the condensed steam from between the two vessels, formed there in the beginning of the operation, while the tar was at a low temperature. Its position on the boilers will, however soon heat it. Tar boils only at a much higher temperature than water—there is therefore no danger from it.

The advantages of this kind of fuel will be very great in long passages. No steam boat or vessel can navigate the Ocean without it; and it will be found economical and convenient in every situation.

Being of recent origin, it has not been put in practice in many instances, but in several, under my own observation, and witnessed by many persons, its effects are admirable.

This advertisement is intended to offer its use gratis to a few boats, whose proprietors shall first obtain a licence. The price of this improvement afterwards will be several thousand dollars per boat, which it will be found economical in most situations to pay. The patent right for local use will be for sale after its value shall be further tested.

Licences to use this invention will be granted by

JOHN L. SULLIVAN,
Assignee of the patent of Samuel Morey.

Pittsburgh Manufacturing Association.

A NUMBER of the Mechanicks and Manufacturers of the City of Pittsburgh and its vicinity, anxious to promote and invigorate that spirit of domestic industry which is so essential to the prosperity of the western country, having entered into an association under the above denomination, inform the public that they have opened a large and convenient Brick Warehouse in Wood Street, between Front and Second Streets, for the reception and sale of the different articles which they manufacture, together with such articles of domestick produce and manufacture as may be deposited for sale, or consigned to their care; and have appointed George Cochran their Chief Clerk or Agent, to whom all orders and communications on the mercantile business of the association, will in future be addressed. They intend to receive, forward and dispose of all goods entrusted to their care, (especially articles of domestick produce and manufacture) on the most reasonable terms, and hope to give satisfaction to those who may please to favour them with their custom and patronage. From the variety and extent of domestic produce and manufactures which may be collected and offered for sale at their Warehouse, with punctuality in paying over the proceeds, and attention to business, a beneficial result is anticipated, as well to the vender as the purchaser.

All orders enclosing the cash for articles manufactured by the members of the association, or sold in their Warehouse, will be promptly and faithfully executed, at the lowest wholesale prices, without any charge for commission, and western current notes taken in payment.

It is also intended to exchange manufactured articles for country produce and raw materials, such as Iron, Lead, Wool, Cotton, Sugar, Salt, Whiskey, Bacon, Hogs-lard, Butter, Cheese, Flaxseed Oil, Hogs Bristles, Linen, Yarn, Rags.

Annexed is a list of articles now offered for Sale.
